

Fairytwale No. 1:

Goldilocks & the Three PCs

A cautionary tale of a teacher who wants the use of ICT in their classroom to be "just right".

The original tale goes something like this (but feel free to convert it to one based around a teacher who wants the use of ICT in their classroom to be just right!):

The three bears are going for a walk in the woods to allow their porridge to cool down.

Goldilocks finds the empty house and goes in.

She smells the porridge: 1 is too hot, 1 is too lumpy and 1 is just right. She eats it all.

She sees three chairs: 1 is too hard, 1 is too soft and 1 is just right (but it breaks under her)

She feels tired, so goes upstairs and sees three beds: 1 is too hard, 1 is too soft and 1 is just right.

She falls fast asleep.

Meanwhile, the three bears return.

They notice someone was eating their porridge & the baby's porridge is all gone.

They notice someone's been sitting in their chairs & the baby's chair is all broken.

They hear snoring (very un-ladylike) and go upstairs.

They notice that all three beds have been slept in and that there's still someone in the baby's bed.

Just then, Goldilocks wakes up, sees the three bears, screams and runs out of the house never to be seen by them again.

The End.

Now, it's over to everyone at the #CESImeet to come up with the story by tweeting the next line:
